

Skin

Lotté Jean

your skin
is the quilt of your life
a patchwork of your existence
sown,
stabbed
and cut
with the truth of living.
your skin
is your art
filled with beauty,
memories
and how much you have endured.
your skin loves you
let it weep and smile
it holds a million secrets and let this be one to you.

Lotté Jean is an Author from North-East England who began as an avid reader before picking up a pen one day and started using her imagination as a tool to create a new universe just like her favorite fictional ones. Through literature, she saw a whole new world open up, and ever since she put pen to page, she has not stopped diving into the deepest parts of the mind and pulled out words that could inspire through poetry or start an adventure with a new character. When she isn't writing novels, poetry, or screenplays with her sister Francesca, Lotté loves nothing more than to find inspiration for life through art films, music, exploring museums, and language learning. She loves to explore the deepest meaning behind things and gain new perspectives of the world in which we inhabit.
